Abstract Of The Disclosure

A method for estimating memory-enabled transmission channels, having the following steps: determining a first estimation $\hat{\underline{h}}$ of the pulse response of the transmission channel; estimating the additive interferences of the transmission channel; and correcting the first

5   channel estimation while taking into consideration the estimation of the additive interferences. The first channel estimation is performed using a matched filter or a least squares estimation.

10